What can we do to help better the food plots? Community service time?

The food plots are completed on a rotational basis, meaning not all plots are planted each year. Some are planted annually and some are planted every other year. Spring plots are typically planted between May and June and are planted with a mixture of millet to attract mourning doves. Fall plots are typically planted between August and October and are planted with a mixture of oats, clover, and a deer mix. We are considering making future changes to the food plot program to, hopefully, provide a better product and to alleviate internal equipment issues. We appreciate the desire and willingness to volunteer your time to assist with the food plot program. However, individuals are not permitted to conduct any vegetation clearing or planting of any seed on the installation. Individuals can help by letting Camp Lejeune leadership know that the wildlife food plot program is important to them and their hunting experience on base.

Tooth wear and replacement is the best method available to wildlife managers for aging white-tailed deer. The age data, along with other biological information, is used to evaluate the current status of the base deer population according to established biological objectives. The established objectives we use on Camp Lejeune mirror those that are used by the NC Wildlife Resources Commission.

Annual harvest data is posted on the MCB Camp Lejeune RecAccess site.

Failure to provide harvest data or follow the guidance of MCIEAST MCB CAMLEJO 5090.115B may result in the loss of hunting privileges.
